"India's voice counts in today's world. The entire planet is drawn to Indian culture and soft power. The global community looks to us for solutions to international problems - whether terrorism, money laundering or climate change," said the President.

Kovind also described India as the land of the Buddha and invoked Mahatma Gandhi, who "led" the freedom struggle, Sardar Patel, who "integrated our nation", and Babasaheb Ambedkar, the "principal architect of our Constitution". However, he made no reference to members of the Nehru-Gandhi family.
